

Mexican Rice

Ingredients:

2	c	White Rice (Jasmine is nice)
2	Tb	Corn Oil
2	med	Onions, diced
1	Tb	Corn Oil
1	ts	Garlic, finely minced
¼	ts	Cumin powder
¼	ts	Coriander Seed powder
2¼	c	Water
1		Chicken Bouillon cube (Knor, Maggi, etc.)
¾	c	El Sapo Salsa Suave
½	ts	Salt
		fresh cilantro for garnish

Preparation:

In a heavy skillet over medium-high flame, heat 2-Tb corn oil until quite hot.

Add the dry rice and toast, stirring constantly, until a deep golden color is achieved. This may take 10-15 minutes. When done, transfer the toasted rice to a rice cooker.

In the same heavy skillet set over medium-high heat, sauté the onions in 1-tablespoon of corn oil until well caramelized (darker than “golden”).

Add caramelized onions to the rice cooker, along with the garlic, bouillon (broken apart), water, cumin powder, coriander seed powder, El Sapo Salsa Suave, and salt. Stir to mix. Close the rice cooker and push the “cook” button.

When the rice cooker finishes, unplug the power and let stand for 10-minutes.

After 10-minutes, gently fluff and mix the rice. Transfer rice to a platter and garnish with cilantro.

Serve as an accompaniment to your Mexican meals. Leftovers can be frozen and re-heated in the microwave with good results.
